WASHINGTON STAR

Oswalds Never Spore Of Guilt, Lawyer Says CPYRGHT By MIRIAM OTTENBERG

On November 23, 1963—the day after President Kennedy was assassinated and the day before his suspected assassin was slain -the Oswald brothers saw each other for the last time in a Dallas cellblock.

On that occasion, Lee Harvey Oswald neither admitted nor denied to his older brother, Robert, that he had killed the President. Robert didn't ask him and Lee didn't volunteer a statement. Robert told the commission that nocence or guilt didn't come up. That was the version of the brothers' final meeting given newsmen yesterday by Robert Oswald's attorney, William A. "That was not in mony," Mr. Dulles McKenzie of Dallas.

Mr. McKenzie steadfastly declined to divulge any part of Robert's three days of testimony before the presidential commission investigating the assassination.

Attacks News Story

When Robert finished his testimony late yesterday, however, Mr. McKenzie broke his silence by reading a lengthy statement life and his own relationships to newsmen attacking the "irresponsible inaccuracies" in a right, very responsive." story about Robert's testimony printed yesterday by the New York Times.

He cited a paragraph of the told the commission he believed any member of the press. the denial.

Mr. McKenzie called that "grossly untrue" and "just false"

"There was no denial by Lee nor was it even mentioned," Mr. McKenzie said as Robert stood by his side. "Lee made no such statement."

At that point in Mr. Mc-Kenzie's impromptu press conference, Robert had a whispered might use such purported testiconference with his attorney.

Dulles Refutes Reporter

The interruption, however, did not change Mr. McKenzie's account because he went on to say, "Lee did not deny to Robert that he killed the Presimind every principle of a free press."

CPYROLLE I didn't come up."

With the completion of the c

In fact, the question of his in- he thought his brother may have been trained as an agent

> "That was not in the testimony," Mr. Dulles said. "Ideny that statement was ever made."

> Neither Mr. Dulles nor Mr. McKenzie shed much light on why Robert's testimony consumed three full days in the light of the fact that the brothers were separated for much of their young lives.

> Mr. Dulles said only that Robert covered his brother's with Lee, and was "very forth-

Divulged No Information

Mr. McKenzie said Robert, "in his respect for the comstory relating that Robert vis-mission, its work and its in-ited his brother at a Dallas tegrity, has sought to assist the jail and asked him if he had commission in every way." He killed the President. The story emphasized that neither he nor reported that Lee denied the Mr. Oswald had divulged any assassination and that Robert of the closed door testimony to

> "I submit," he said, "that it is reprehensible and completely unfair to the Commission, to the President of the United States and to the people of this nation as a whole to divulge or print any purported testimony given to the commission without commission approval, particularly while the witness is under oath, whereby any group mony to further its own purpose or bias . . .

"I just say that misleading, who presided over most of the closest to Lee Oswald-his questioning of Robert Oswald, widow, his mother and his denied another element of the brother—the commission will Times story.

meet tomorrow afternoon to Times reported that consider its next move.

The - Approved For Release: 'CIA-RDP70-00088R000300040082-4